

I was greatly disturbed when I heard the Sinclair Broadcast group plans to air an anti-Kerry documentary which is a political statement disguised as "information." Many people who would see this will not realize this is sponsored by a heavily pro-Republican group. It is my understanding that it will run without commercials. Ask yourself this, when these stations sell advertising time to corporations for millions of dollars a minute, who is paying for this?? I also heard the topic will be the Vietnam war, which was and still is, a divisive topic in our country. This is a time when Americans should be coming together as one country, not drawing lines. It sickens me that you can fine a network for showing a breast to an audience but you can allow a company to force this type of programming on its affiliates who then pass it off to the public as an independent, fair, and non-partisan documentary. If you let them do it, then have it start out "I'm George Bush and I approve this message" and then make them pay for it like any other political group, or give the Democratic party equal time to make up their own biased, totally one sided story. I am lodging a complaint that this is not the America I want the world to see. It is not democracy. It is big business attempting to control us. Thank you.
